PRICE THREE CENTS

PROJECT HEAD SELECTED FOR FHA WORK HERE

3 Assistants, Time-keeper and Stenographer Are Also Chosen.

AWAIT STATE CONFIRMATION

A project head, for Adams county, one assistant for Gettysburg, one for Biglerville and a third for New Oxford; one timekeeper and one stenographer, were selected by the advisory, executive and publicity committees of the Gettysburg and Adams county federal housing administration group, at a meeting here Friday night.

The names of those selected for the above-named positions will not be made public until they are approved by the national re-employment service, with whom all must be registered, before they can be allotted to the posts.

Salaries Are Fixed

The project head will receive a salary of $35 per week; the three assistants will receive $25 per week each; the timekeeper will receive $22 per week and the stenographer, who will furnish her own typewriter, will receive $25.20 per week, based on a scale of 70c an hour for a 36-hour week.

These were the only positions filled by the committees. Their selections will be sent to the NRS for confirmation after which they will be made public.

In addition to the six positions filled Friday night, two typists will be selected by the re-employment office here and 40 enumerators will be chosen to begin the work in the county.

It is likely that additional enumerators may be selected after the work gets underway but no definite announcement to this effect can be made at this time.

Overestimate Cost

The enumerators will receive 60c an hour for a 36-hour week and the typists will be paid a fixed salary. Enumerators will be required to furnish their own transportation where and when it is required or needed.

Gettysburg and Adams county will not be required to raise $635 for current office supplies as announced in the approved project. This figure is in excess, by more than half, of what the town and county will be required to raise to promote the FHA program here.

One item, estimated by those who prepared the project papers, was far in excess of the actual cost. The printing bill, estimated by those who prepared the project, was fixed at $500, whereas the actual cost is only $105.20.

This includes two sets of cards, of ten thousand each, and eight other forms, form letters, applications, scale sheets, etc.

Only the amount actually required to promote the FHA here will be raised in the county. The difference will be deducted from the complete cost of the project.

To Raise $200

C. A. Bixler, county FHA chairman, who presided at Friday's meeting, announced that a "friend" had informed him of a plan whereby approximately $200 could be raised to help finance the FHA project in Adams county, and that he had given his consent to the plan. It will not require any promotion effort on the part of the three committees.

The committee members approved Mr. Bixler's action.

Hauptmann's Bank Accounts Being Probed by Attorneys

Plemington, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP).—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense explored today a maze of money drafting evidence from his financial accounts to oppose the state's testimony that he had a mysterious income of $49,960—only $40 less than the Lindbergh ransom figure.

Wading through Hauptmann's bank and brokerage statements during the week-end recess defense attorneys said they would show Lindbergh ransom notes failed to appear in a single one of the accounts.

Edward J. Reilly, the florid chief of defense, took pains to bring out that before the kidnapping, the Hauptmann bank accounts already showed sizeable deposits, evidences of the frugal habits of the Bronx carpenter and his pale, care-worn wife.

The state took immediate steps for a counter-attack, Attorney General Wilentz asserting that on the eve of the ransom payment the Hauptmann balance in one bank was only $293.90, and that a year later, the amount had swollen to $2,528.35.

Basing its case further on a contention that the money banked was changed from the ransom notes, the prosecution established that in another account in a Mount Vernon (New York) bank the Hauptmann deposits were known for their number of silver coins.

The prosecution drew into its theory of the case a picture of Hauptmann cautiously passing the ransom bills in minor purchases, and banking all the change.

The portrait fitted into the composite picture it has tried to paint of Hauptmann throughout the trial—that of a cool, calculating person plotting every step far in advance, carrying out the kidnapping and working out a way to enjoy the proceeds.

None Injured as Cars Sideswipe

A touring car driven by John H. Nary, Orrtanna R. 1, and a truck of the Chambersburg produce company, driven by Harvey Kramer, of Chambersburg, sideswiped on the Orrtanna-Fairfield road at 8:30 o'clock, Friday evening. No one was hurt, and damage, estimated at $20, was caused to Nary's car.

The truck was traveling south while Nary was going north.

Patrolman W. B. Hersher, of the local sub-station of the state highway patrol, investigated the accident.

'34 WORST FOR FOREST FIRES

4,170 Blazes in Pennsylvania Woods During Past Year, Report Shows.

The year 1934 was one of the worst for forest fires in the history of forest protection in Penn's Woods, George H. Wirt, chief forest fire warden of Pennsylvania, reported today.

There were 4,170 fires burned in the woodlands of the state last year, according to the bureau of forest protection where are recorded the fire statistics for the department of forests and waters. These conflagrations burned close to 180,000 acres and cost the commonwealth $146,500 to extinguish.

April was the month having the largest number of forest fires, when 1,071 blazes were reported throughout the state.

The greatest acreage, however, was burned in May. During this month occurred one of the largest forest fires since records have been kept by the department, a conflagration that covered 39,900 acres, most of which burned in northern Centre county.

Despite the large number of fires and the extensive acreage burned, attributed by Wirt to the prolonged dry season of 1934, 60 per cent of the fires were under ten acres in area. Last year was the most severe season in point of area burned since 1930, although there were 790 more fires in 1932 than in 1934.

Fire Destroys Atlanta Landmark

Atlanta, Jan. 19 (AP).—Flames believed by firemen to have started from an explosion early today burned the old Georgia railroad depot and warehouse, one of the landmarks of Atlanta, to the ground with loss estimated at more than $100,000.

The building formed a portion of the Atlanta Joint Terminal, W. N. Hicks, general agent, said more than 50 carloads of freight had been stored in the warehouse Friday.

The fire enveloped the building before firemen arrived.

The old depot building was built before the war between the states. The warehouse was added later.

LEGION ISSUES STATEMENT ON MARKET HOUSE

Answer Objections to Its Proposed Indoor Home for Hucksters

CITES REASONS FOR ACCEPTANCE

The following prepared statement was issued this morning by the Albert J. Lentz Post, No. 202, The American Legion, relative to the much-discussed indoor market house.

It is presented herewith in full as submitted by William Timmins, post commander of the local post:

"The American Legion believes the farmers have been misled in the description of the proposed market house and we wish to reply to their objections as appearing in the Gettysburg Times of January 17.

"1. Is the market house going to cost the farmer too much for what he gets for his produce? There is no reason why a market house located in the Legion home should cost the farmer any more than in another location in Gettysburg. In fact the expense, to the taxpayer, would be less than if the council bought a lot and erected a building which would probably cost near $20,000.

"2. Concerning four days a week as being too many, we reply there is nothing in the lease that the market must be conducted a certain number of days each week. The market hours and the days of the week market is to be conducted is not the Legion's business.

"3. Answering the five-foot stalls as not giving sufficient display space we reply that the present curb market is conducted by each farmer in the rear of his car which is approximately five feet. We have noticed some of the farmers using a table to display their products that measure about four feet square.

Parking Question

"4. As to inadequacy of parking space we say the parking space is as plentiful as some of the proposed places and far more plentiful than at the building of Councilman Epley on York street, which, due to some outside influences, seems to be preferred. There is parking space in four alleys leading into the Legion home some of which have space large enough for double parking.

"These alleys lead in from Baltimore, High, Middle and Washington streets. At the point where these alleys meet is the Legion home.

"Parking space for the customers is much better than at the Epley show room for the following reason: Parking on York street is limited to two hours and positively no double parking. This leaves only two streets near the market if it is to be on York street where the parking is unlimited, two blocks on East Middle street and three blocks on Stratton.

"Those who cannot park on these two streets will have quite a walk back to their cars from the market.

"The Legion home is located in the center of seven streets, none of which has a limit in parking time. These streets are Baltimore, East Middle, West Middle, East High, West High, South Washington and Stratton. When a good business man looks for a location for his business he looks for a place convenient for his customers, not for himself, and does not expect the customer to inconvenience himself to patronize the business. The Legion home here also scores over the more preferred place as to convenient parking space for the patrons.

Market Entrances

"5. As to the charge that there is danger of having produce stolen we say that unless Mr. Epley expects to supply a guard for the farmers' trucks, his place and no other will be safer than the Legion home.

"6. The farmer has been badly misled as to the poor entrance to (Continued on Page Two)

URGE STATE TO KEEP PROMISE ON MOTOR FUND

Want Vehicle Revenue Used for Construction, Maintenance Of Roads.

UNFAIR TO USE FUND ELSEWHERE

Pointing out that it is unfair and unjust to tax motor vehicle transportation unless the proceeds are applied solely to the construction, improvement and maintenance of highways, the Pennsylvania motor federation, AAA, today called on the state "to keep its bargain with the motorist and protect the gas tax and license funds from diversion to other than uses for which they are intended."

"Motorists of Pennsylvania do not seek to evade their duty," said S. Edward Gable, president of the state motoring organization. "They have paid and are paying plenty in taxes, but they insist that their money that goes into the motor fund be continued in the form of taxes—not turned into exalted tribute. All they ask is a fair deal." Mr. Gable's statement continued:

Efficiency Angle

"Aside from the question of fairness, however, is that of efficiency. Diversion of highway funds to relief will throw thousands of men out of employment in Pennsylvania. Highway funds normally provide $90 worth of productive jobs for each $100 spent, while as direct charity only about $85 out of every $100 goes to actual relief. Another fact to consider is that when money goes for road construction the state gets highways in return, while if the money goes to direct charity, nothing of permanence results.

"The gasoline tax and license moneys have been carefully gaged to meet highway needs, and the diversion of even relatively small sums must affect highway programs. Then, too, if even relatively small sums are diverted this opens the way to further raids on motor funds.

"Why should the motorist be specially taxed to pay for inland waterways, fish hatcheries, geodetic surveys, poor and unemployment relief? It is held by some that this (Continued on Page Two)

TRAPPING NOW GOOD BUSINESS IN THIS AREA

Boys in 'Teens Make Handsome Profits With Many Traps In Nearby Woods.

LOCAL DEALERS QUOTE PRICES

An unusually profitable trapping season is under way in Adams county, according to Leo E. Bushman, county game protector, and the combined sport and business of trapping is attracting persons of all ages.

Boys of the teens' age comprise a major portion of the county's trappers, some Gettysburg youngsters having as many as 300 traps in fields, woods and along streams.

For the older persons, the hunting of raccoons and opossums at night with dogs is a favorite, as well as a profitable pastime.

Muskrats Plentiful

Muskrats are unusually plentiful in Adams county this winter, and the open winter has favored the trappers. The animals are active and their pelts are thick and heavy. Prices of muskrat and other hides are generally higher this season than last.

The muskrat season opened December 1 and closes on February 28, while the trapping of other fur-bearing animals began November 1 and closes the last of February.

Mares Sherman and Morris Gittlin, both of Gettysburg, purchase most of the pelts of fur-bearing animals trapped in Adams county. At present, the prices for pelts is tapering off, due to the approach of spring.

Prices quoted by local fur dealers in Gettysburg today for various kinds of pelts follow:

Muskrat, 80 cents; skunk, $1; opossum, 40 cents; raccoon, up to $2.50; red fox, up to $4, and mink, up to $6.

Other Trappings

In addition to the trapping of fur-bearing animals, many Adams countyans add to their winter income by the trapping and killing of predatory animals, such as weasels, gray foxes, goshawks and wild cats. The state pays substantial bounties for such animals.

For wild cats, the state pays a bounty of $15; for goshawks, $5; for gray foxes, $4, and weasels, $1.

In December, 19 gray foxes and 183 weasels were caught in Adams county, and bounty claims amounting to $259 were paid by the state.

Mr. Bushman pointed out that boys under 16 years of age need no licenses to trap, while those over 16 years must have a county hunting license. All traps must bear the name and address of the person putting them out. Traps must be visited at least once every 36 hours.

GETS BOGUS CHECK

Robert Green, proprietor of the Double Diamond Tire Shop, Chambersburg street, reported to state police that a stranger gave him a worthless check for $10 in payment of a $1 purchase. The check bore the signature of Philip Porter and was drawn on the First National Bank of Gettysburg. Police are investigating.

Dern Orders "Rough Ride" Test To Oust "Swivel-Chair" Flyers

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP).—A stiff "rough ride" test for the 1,228 pilots in the army air corps, designed to eliminate the "swivel chair" officers and make way for the junior and more rugged personnel, was ordered Friday by George H. Dern, secretary of war.

All flying officers will have to take the test by June 30. Those who can "take it" will stay in. Those who can't will be transferred to non-flying duty in the air corps or to some other branch of the service.

The test, devised by the general staff and air corps chiefs, is a part of a plan approved by the war secretary for improvement in the corps. Pilots who succeed in passing it, however, will be required to fly a minimum of one hundred hours a year under all conditions, such as night, instrument, cross-country and formation flying.

The move recalled to old-time army officers the famous "Russian ride" former President Theodore Roosevelt instituted to weed out desk-riding cavalry officers.

Dern also approved a temporary promotion system through which junior officers assigned to commands ordinarily filled by higher ranks may receive ratings in accordance with the duties they are performing.

This will benefit officers throughout the corps, but its immediate effect will be to grant higher ranks to

Twins Will Be 63, January 30

Additional eligibles to the list of those celebrating birthday anniversaries on January 30—the date of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's natal anniversary—have been received by The Gettysburg Times. A mammoth Roosevelt birthday party will be held at the Hotel Gettysburg, January 30, in observance of the president's birthday.

Among those whose birthdays have been reported to The Gettysburg Times as occurring on January 30 are William McIlhenny, Harrisburg road, who will be 21; Roy D. Musselman, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Musselman, Fairfield; H. M. Oyler, Jr., 12, Baltimore street; Eugene Chester Cromer, 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleason Cromer, West Middle street, and Donald O. Price, 12, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Deardorff, Gettysburg R. 3.

One set of twins, born on January 30, has also come to light. They are Mrs. Charles E. Lady, 135 West street, and Mrs. John Gebhart, 1522 Regina street, Harrisburg, who will observe their sixty-third birthday anniversaries on January 30.

Teachers Attend Banquet, Friday

One hundred and sixty-five Adams county school teachers attended a banquet at the Methodist Episcopal church, Friday evening, held in connection with the mid-winter rally of school teachers at Gettysburg high school. Prof. Ira Y. Baker, assistant county superintendent of school, was toastmaster. Group singing was led by Prof. Charles L. Yost, of Biglerville.

Addresses were given by Dr. E. Clarke Fontaine, of Baltimore; Prof. F. H. Gaige, of Millersville state teachers' college; Prof. L. C. Keefeauver, Gettysburg city superintendent, and Prof. J. Floyd Slaybaugh, county superintendent.

An orchestra composed of students in various high schools throughout the county played for the banquet.

Officers Assigned to the New General Headquarters Air Force.

As recommended by the Baker aviation committee, all air corps officers of fifteen or less years' service hereafter will be required to pass the flying tests annually.

The tests require each flying officer in the United States to acquire a standard of proficiency by flying a minimum of:

Thirty-five hours navigation, including one flight of at least 500 miles with a minimum of two intermediate landings.

Not less than two flights of at least 200 miles each over the department of commerce airways, using available radio navigational aids and communication systems.

Ten hours instrument flying, including a minimum of five hours "blind flying" under the hood.

Ten hours night flying, including a night navigation flight of two hours' duration.

Five hours formation flying.

Flying officers stationed outside the United States are required to take similar tests, to be determined by the commanding generals, in conformity with the physical and geographical limitations of their posts.

Observers and other categories of officers in the air corps must take similar tests to qualify for their rank and position.

285 TEACHERS ATTEND RALLY HERE ON FRIDAY

Educators Deliver Instructive Addresses, Afternoon and Evening.

DIVIDE GROUP INTO SECTIONS

Approximately 285 regular and emergency teachers attended a mid-winter rally at Gettysburg high school, Friday afternoon and evening.

With Prof. J. Floyd Slaybaugh, county superintendent of schools, presiding, the afternoon session opened with devotionals by the Rev. Howard S. Fox, of Gettysburg. Professor Slaybaugh then welcomed the teachers, superintendents and speakers.

Group singing was led by Prof. Charles L. Yost, of Biglerville, and Miss Marie Buddy, of Littlestown, sang a solo.

The group was then divided into sectional meetings. Miss Helena McCray, of the state department of public instruction, discussed "Meaningful Experiences for Children" in the group for teachers of the first six grades, and Miss Dorothy Brindle, of Gettysburg high school, gave a demonstration in the teaching of fourth grade music.

Group Topics

Prof. Charles C. Taylor, Arendtsville, presided for the teachers of grades from seven to 12. Addresses were given by Dr. E. Clarke Fontaine, of Baltimore, whose theme was "What Is Supervised Study?" and Dr. Frank Kramer, of Gettysburg college, who spoke on "Aims of Secondary Education."

In the rural section, Prof. Ira Y. Baker, assistant county superintendent of schools, presided. Prof. F. H. Gaige, of the Millersville state teachers' college, discussed the subject, "Hold Fast To That Which Is Good," and Miss McCray spoke on "The New Block Program For Rural One-Room Schools."

After the sectional meetings, the teachers met in a body again with Prof. W. Roy Stary, York Springs, presiding, and heard an address, "Underlying Principles of the Large Unit of Teaching" by Doctor Fontaine.

Prof. L. C. Keefeauver, of Gettysburg, presided at the evening session, which opened with music, followed by reports by C. P. Keefe, New Oxford, and Miss Reda Long, anecker, Littlestown, delegates to the recent Pennsylvania state education association convention in Harrisburg.

Addresses at the evening session were given by Professor Gaige, whose subject was "Unfortunate Characters of History," using Benedict Arnold as his main character, and Doctor Fontaine, whose theme was "Is Teaching a Profession?"

Professor Keefe, chairman of the resolutions' committee, gave the report of that committee in which Professor Slaybaugh was thanked for arranging the program for the meeting. The resolutions' committee also proposed that the Edmunds act be retained in its original form. Governor George H. Earle was commended for his educational principles and policies. The teachers also resolved to support the 17-point legislative program adopted by the P. S. E. A. at its recent convention.

With Professor Keefe on the resolutions' committee were J. Warren Martin, C. D. McCauslin and Boston, Jan. 19 (AP)—Four armed men kidnaped the night manager of a garage in the Dorchester district early today, seized a five ton truck loaded with leather valued at between $8,000 and $10,000 and escaped.

The leather was consigned to a firm in London. William Holmes, 18, the night manager, told police the four men drove a sedan into the garage, ostensibly to park it. As they got out of the car, he said, they covered him with guns, threw a blanket over his head and tossed him into their machine. Two drove him away in the sedan, he told police, while the others sped off in the truck.

He said he was driven for about four hours and thrown out in Canton, about 15 miles south of Boston. He hitch-hiked back to Boston where he reported the incident to police.

diversion is excusable because the state needs money. That reason might as well be given by the pick-pocket and the highway robber.

Unfair Discrimination

"Pennsylvania needs money to take care of pressing needs, but this should be collected by straightforward methods that bear fairly for all. Why should the motor car owner and driver be made the goat? Motorists do not object to paying their full share of taxes, but they balk at unfair discrimination. Diversion of funds turns taxation into exacted tribute. Let's not smear the fair name of Pennsylvania with such a blot, even though it is done under the guise of emergency legislation. There is surely another and a fairer way out."

Perfumed Notes Keep Actor On Job After Demanding Raise.

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—If there's one thing an actor likes, it's flattery. And that little ego trapped one of Broadway's best known matinee idols into working 10 weeks for a salary much lower than he was accustomed to receive.

Opening in a play at $500 a week, his personality and box office appeal soon turned it into a small success. The applause of the feminine part of his audiences soon persuaded him he should be getting more than $500. So, approaching the producer, he demanded $1,000 or threatened to quit.

"I can't pay you any more," answered the producer, "so you'll just have to turn in your two weeks' notice and leave the part."

After the actor had left, the producer called in his girl secretary and gave her some instructions.

A Perfumed Note

The next day the actor received a perfumed note in a girl's handwriting, the message saying that she was enamored of the star, that she attended every one of his performances and that some day she would get up enough courage to come backstage and vouchsafe her adoration in person.

Day after day the actor continued to receive these intriguing little billets-doux, and week after week he stayed on in his part—at his old salary.

Now that the show is closed, with his little admirer never putting in an appearance—the actor night as well know that his letter-writing friend was his boss's secretary.

A Sad Story

One of the smaller hotels in a holiday resort near Manhattan has a staff of only three waiters. Business had not been so good, but the manager consoled himself with the fact that he would get turnaway business on Labor day, enough so that he could close the red ink side of the ledger.

Labor day came and the merry-makers crowded the place, but when they called for room-service there was no answer. The waiters had not appeared for work, business was going boom and the manager was going goofy.

The next day the menials put in an appearance, and the manager, rearing mad, charged at them.

"Where were you yesterday?" he shouted.

"Oh, we couldn't come in," answered the waiters. "We had to parade."

Slipping his feet from his shoes in a cinema, a well-known author absently wandered up the aisle—and thereby turned a theater into a shoe factory.

Discovering his loss, he went back but could not locate his shoes. There wasn't anything he could do but summon the manager, who promptly sent a squad of ushers in search of the missing shoes. But right on their heels came a host of indignant patrons clamoring for justice.

Moral: Don't take your shoes off in a theater, no matter how much your dogs ache; some usher, in an effort to placate an absent-minded author, may beat you to them.

RIOTS HALT FILM MAKING

Hungarian Actor Tells of Hardships of Producing Films in Europe.

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—It is no mere banality when Victor Varconi declares after two years abroad, that Hollywood is the only place to make pictures.

The Hungarian actor has returned to the comparative peace and quiet of this film capital after European experiences that demonstrated the inconveniences, to say the least, of an acting career spent amid rebellions, demonstrations, and putsches.

It was only chance that sent Victor Varconi to Berlin in the winter of 1932, for "The Rebel" was conceived while he was still in Hollywood. Universal certainly did not plan to start a picture coincidentally with the rise of Hitler to power. But Berlin was alive with brown-shirt demonstrations, which were something to see, according to Varconi. However, demonstrations have no sympathy for movie production schedules.

"It often took me two hours to get through traffic to the studio," he says.

"It Happened in Spain"

And then, as luck would have it, Varconi went to Madrid to make a picture. "It Happened in Spain" was the title, and a lot did happen. They arrived when the city was seething with the excitement of rebellion. Again streets were thronged with soldiers, soldiers, soldiers. They had to go "around the back way" to reach their hotel. Going on location in the south of Spain, his party was searched minutely, even to the inner tubes of the automobile tires.

"You cannot make pictures," says Varconi, "in an atmosphere of military unrest, amid demonstrations and rebellion. The first essential for good production is peace."

In London there was peace, even though the blackshirts demonstrated in Hyde Park—"with seven policemen for every blackshirt marching"—but there the studios' technical equipment still does not compare with Hollywood's, despite advances made in British films generally, the actor declares.

Good-Bye to Vienna

Coincidence brought Varconi to Vienna in June of this year when Dollfuss' assassination stirred so much talk of war.

"Having been in the last war," he said, with laconic humor, "I had no desire to remain for another. I did not stay."

"In Paris my hotel was a center of the riots of last February. They do not stage riots nearly as impressive as those Hollywood creates for the screen," he comments.

Varconi, a serious student of the European scene, has his own theory of the underlying cause of current militarism. He blames it on what he calls the lack of any other economic future for the youth of the various countries.

N. D. GOVERNOR IS IMPEACHED

Vote Is 60 to 52 as Non-Partisan Leagues Rush Move in Lower House.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 18.—Governor Thomas A. Moodie, democrat, whose fight for the governorship only began when he won the election last November 6, Friday was impeached by the North Dakota house of representatives.

His eligibility challenged in quo warranto proceedings before the state supreme court even before he took office twelve days ago, the former newspaper editor Friday faced suspension until the senate decides the charges voted against him by the house of representatives.

The impeachment resolution, sponsored by the dominant non-partisan republican faction of the house, was rushed to a vote two hours after it was offered. Moodie supporters, who fought it bitterly, averring it was only a political move, could muster only fifty-two votes against the non-partisan's sixty.

Violations Not Specified

The resolution charged Governor Moodie with "crime, corrupt conduct, and incompetency." The resolution charged Governor or in office," but did not specify the violations.

Under state laws, Moodie will be suspended until charges in the impeachment resolution are heard by the state senate. Lieutenant-Governor Walter Welford, affiliated with the Non-Partisan League faction, will take over the duties of governor.

Moodie, however, said late Friday he will retain possession of his office on the advice of Attorney General P. O. Sathre, who advised him the impeachment resolution adopted by the assembly is invalid.

Advised To Post Guards

Moodie said the attorney general advised him to post two national guardsmen at the executive offices to balk any possible attempt to disturb the governor's office.

Sathre, affiliated with Non-partisan league faction that sponsored impeachment proceedings, is also head of the legal forces prosecuting court action to disqualify Moodie.

The impeachment move precipitated one of the bitterest debates in the state's history. Senators promptly left their chamber and joined 500 spectators in the crowded house gallery.

Legion Issues

the market house except through the alleys. The proposed building will have a double entrance leading in from Baltimore street, an entrance through the Shank hardware store, and two entrances from the alley leading in from Baltimore street, the entrances being but a short distance in from Baltimore street. The alley is as solid and clean as the sidewalks of town. Another large entrance will be provided in the back of the building. This makes a total of five entrances, two of them directly off of Baltimore street and not one of the "round-about way through alleys," as the farmers have been led to believe.

"7. In answer to the assertion that a large amount of tourist trade would be lost, we reply that the guides working on Baltimore street get as many trips as those on York street. We believe and have seen in the past that the residents of this town will generally buy everything the farmer brings in. We have had the experience ourselves of going to market some time after the opening hour and found a number of the market men sold out and leaving for home.

"8. The statement that the same location was discussed years ago and found to be inadequate is incorrect. We received letters and still have them showing that most of the farmers attending market at that time were in favor of it.

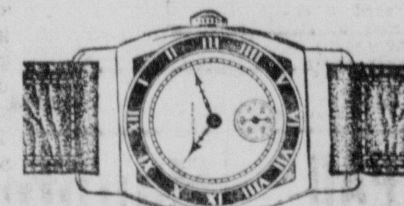

Question Of Rent

"9. Answering the charge the rent would be too high for a heated building and that the place would be jammed to over-flowing during the summer season we say the Legion has nothing to do with the amount of rent charged the farmers. Also, council would have to charge the same rent regardless of where the heated building is located.

"10. In reply to the charge that an inside market would discourage attendance of buyers we say that patrons would rather shop in a warm, clean place than walk around in the cold during all kinds of weather. Products can be displayed more sanitariously inside than on the curb. We all know that a curb is the most unsanitary place of public thoroughfare. Here again the Legion home is equal to all other proposed places, for regardless where the market house is located it will be inside.

"The Gettysburg Times states that the Epley show room is the preferred location. Has the farmer been told that the building has only an entrance in the front and an entrance in the rear? As we stated before, the parking space is much smaller both for the market men and the patrons. It was also stated that if the plan goes through they will take their produce to other nearby towns, where they will do their buying and selling. It would be well for these men to investigate the conditions in nearby towns, as most of them have indoor markets

Japan Mobilizes To Protect Jehol

(Copyright, 1935, by A. P.)

Hsinking, Manchukuo, Jan. 19.—The might of the Japanese army in Manchukuo was mustered Friday to expel Chinese irregulars ascertained raiding Jehol province.

A communique issued at the headquarters of General Jiro Minami, Japanese ambassador to Manchukuo and commander of Japanese military forces here, said the army was determined to move forcibly against troops commanded by Sung Che-Huan, Chinese governor of Chahar.

Insisting that the Japanese forces, already stationed along the borders of Jehol in anticipation of the campaign, would not "cross the Great Wall," the communique listed Chinese provocation obliging the Japanese to undertake the operations.

(At the time General Minami, famed for his hard-fisted dealing in Sino-Japanese conflicts, was sent to Manchukuo; foreign observers predicted Japanese pressure against China's northern provinces would continue, if not increase. The possibility of Japan's extending her sway into Chahar, easternmost province of Inner Mongolia, also was foreseen.)

Climax of the Chinese provocations in Jehol, the communique said, came January 15 when a squadron of Sung's cavalry raided a Manchukuoan outpost near Tatan, not far from the Chahar border, and carried off 40 Manchukuoans.

The announcement of the campaign plans further charged that Sung's cavalry frequently penetrated into the Tatan region, soldiers or else they are quite a distance from here.

"The United States government located our present Post Office on the site where it now stands, opposite the Legion home, because of its central location. The post office was moved from the building now occupied by the Gettysburg bowling alleys, which is next to the C. W. Epley show room. The Legion home is centrally located, amply fitted with entrances and exits for farmers and patrons and has more parking space than the other places suggested, regardless if they are preferred or just ordinary sites."

dressed in plain clothes having advanced as far as Fengning, creating disorders and upsetting the Japanese administration.

Sung had promised to withdraw all his subordinates from Jehol before December 31, the communique said, but failed to carry out his pledge.

The punitive force to be sent against him, it was revealed, will consist of a portion of the division garrisoned at Jehol City reinforced by air squadrons.

Japanese infantry is concentrated at Takochen and Tatan, in northwest Jehol, and scouting and combating planes are being held in readiness.

A report that the Japanese plan actually to invade Chahar previously was denied by military authorities.

MENNAIR SPEAKS IN YORK

Pittsburgh Single-tax Advocate and Democratic Mayor Addresses Congregation.

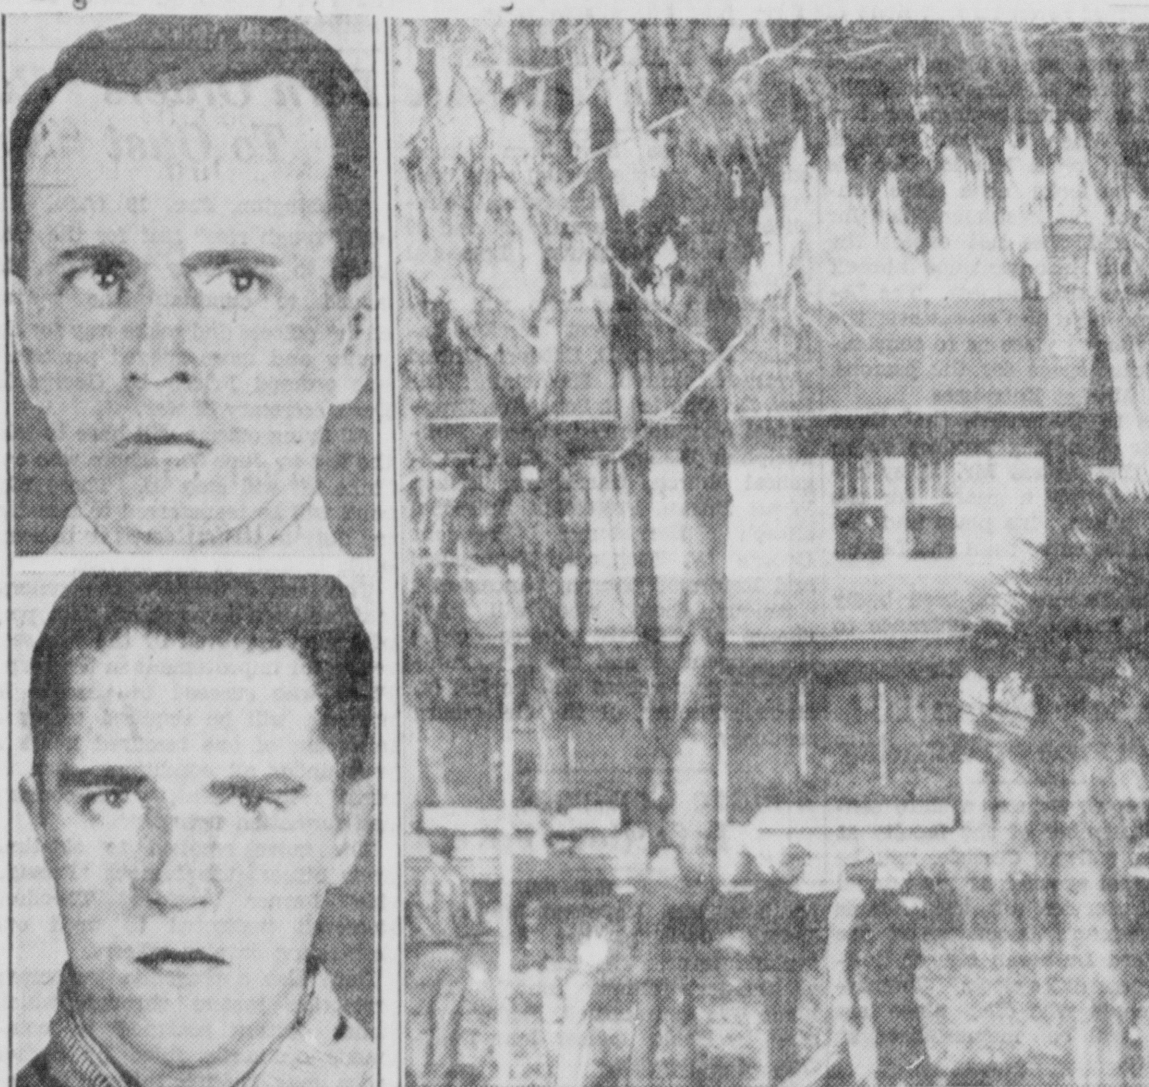

Pittsburgh's Jeremiah, Mayor William N. McNair, advocate extraordinary of the proposal advanced a generation or two ago by Henry George, still is at his self-appointed task of propagandizing the single tax.

He spoke in York Thursday night at St. Matthew's Lutheran church, whose pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, was his classmate at Gettysburg college.

In an interview, the democratic mayor of Pittsburgh, who says he has virtually been read out of the party by David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman and member of the firm of Harris and Lawrence, declared that he will fight the proposed "ripper" bill which is designed by state democratic leaders to remove him from office.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: Today Montana, El Keel to the Mexicans, is to marry Ruth Lavery, the daughter of a wealthy rancher, after several postponements for which he is to blame. Now Mateo Rubric, the quibotic landit, has failed a challenge by Jack Lascar, in order to put Montana away from the law and secure his help in recovering the emerald crown of Our Lady, stolen from the church by the governor of Mateo's province. Montana decides to answer the challenge, in spite of the insult to Ruth.

Chapter Eight

PARTING

"I've got the call that a man has to answer, Ruth," Montana said. She only stared at him. Her lips were parted a little. She looked older; she seemed to be squinting at a bright, distant light. The future, as like as not, Montana tried to feel sorry, but couldn't. Richard Lavery did the speaking. He said: "This will be about all, my lad. My girl has put up with a good bit. You'll forget about Jack Lascar here and now, or else you'd better forget about Ruth."

Montana dismounted. The "wild" mare started to follow him up the steps, but shrank away from these strangers. Her master stood over Ruth.

"He's speaking for you, I suppose?" said Montana. But she only kept on staring. One could not say whether there was more pain or fear in her eyes.

"It appears that I am speaking for her," said Lavery. "We know—what we owe to you, but there's a future as well as a past to think of."

"Wait a minute," said Montana. "You can only talk for yourself. Say something, Ruth!"

"I can't," she answered. "If I try to talk—I'll only be weeping."

"People cry about things that are gone, finished. Am I finished as far as you're concerned?"

She shook her head.

"I gave you a promise about the riding of the mare, and then I broke it. Does that make you feel that you can never trust me?"

"Do you trust yourself?" she asked. This struck him very hard, apparently. He began to reason on her side: "It's our wedding day—and I ride off—I'll always be riding off. Is that what you feel?"

She was silent.

"I know," concluded Montana. "I can see it. What's left in you is mostly fear."

"I want to be braver and bigger," said the girl, "but I can't help it. Why are you this way?"

"Because the devil got into me between breaths, I suppose," said Montana. "You won't believe how my heart's aching for you now. You seem to me everything that's right and beautiful. If I go away, the best half of the world will be behind me. But I can't stay and be the happy cat by the fire. Ruth, I'm going away. . . . No matter what happens today, there's no coming back for me."

He took her suddenly in his arms. The tears began to run down her face, but she said, very gently: "I'm not pitying myself. It's for you! I think God pities you, too—and loves you."

She lifted her face and he kissed her.

Then he turned to Lavery and shook hands. "I was hating you a minute ago—but you're right," he said.

"There'll be another chance for me to show you that I'll never forget you," said Lavery. "If you'll still listen to me, I'll still beg you—"

He checked himself. His unspoken words filled a beating moment of silence, and then Montana was walking jauntily down the steps and waving his hand.

"So long, everyone," he called. Afterwards, as he sat the saddle, he heard Ruth crying: "But he'll be killed! Father, he's going to be—"

The sudden beating of the hoofs of the red mare drowned out that complaint. As he came to the turn of the road, he felt an invisible hand tugging at his shoulder and therefore he turned into the saddle and rode out of view with his hat waving over his head.

Now he let the red mare race to get through the pass between the hills, pointing towards far-off Bentonville. After that he felt that he had slipped the hand of the past from his shoulder. He began to laugh like a child. He had not realized how he had dreaded double harness until he was started on the empty trail again!

It was ten-twenty by his watch when he headed into the main street of Bentonville. That was cutting the time a bit short, perhaps, but he did not want to burn up the strength of Sally with too hard a run. For, supposing that he met Lascar and survived the fight with him, he might need all the speed that was in the mare immediately.

Gun-fights were barred in Bentonville. A message had been sent to the sheriff, who was probably running a horse at a dead gallop to get back to the town in time to prevent the duel. And that same sheriff, solemnly, with careful words, had warned Montana that a single flash of a gun in his hand would be enough to land him in jail.

It was curious, in a way, that Jack Lascar should have called for a show-down—public show-down. Because there was nothing public about the character or the past of Jack. He loved twilight and twilight ways like a cat.

There was some mystery behind this challenge—or was it that the memory of that other defeat, that public shaming, had driven Jack Lascar into a frenzy at last, until death was better than a life in which men smiled behind his back?

A freckled-faced boy ran out from tana: "Are you gunna do it, Montana?" he shrilled. "Are you gunna kill him? The sheriff'll chase you if you pull a gun in this town! Don't get yourself chased away from us, Montana. Everybody knows you licked Lascar once. Everybody knows you ain't afraid!"

"Things will be all right, thanks, brother," said the Kid.

The boy, panting, drew off to the side, shaking his head; and then settled down into a steady dog-trot to get to the appointed place of the meeting.

Then Montana saw Hi Bailey's blacksmith shop in the distance, thin blue wisps of smoke leaking out through the big, open doors of the place. No horses were tethered in front of it, waiting their turn to be shod. Instead, the string was hitched on the near side of the fence.

Well, if bullets were to fly, horse-flesh is as penetrable as the bodies of men, but the Kid knew himself and he knew Jack Lascar. There would be no wild shots in this fight!

No wonder the rest of the town had seemed deserted. All the life of it was concentrated here. The windows, the doorways, were filled, and people stood at the corners of the houses. A dull murmur rose, swelled into a many-throated voice. The women and children gave the shrill to the sound.

The Kid looked down and saw that he was white with dust. He had stuffed the trousers into the tops of his boots and dust was thick in the folds beneath the knee.

Then he saw a slende figure walk slowly out from under an awning and step into the street with feet that lifted high, as though this man did not wish to kick the dust up over the polish of his boots.

That was Jack Lascar. His bright Mexican jacket flashed dazzling in the sun.

"I'll put a red spot on that jacket," said Montana softly.

He dismounted. The mare followed him, shying a bit from side to side as she kept seeing fresh crowds of humans on either side of the street.

Lascar stood in the exact center of the street, with his hands on his hips. If he had more light on the face, he would try his shot for the head. Well, he might try for the head, anyway. The bright buckle of the hat-belt would be a neat target—neat and small. And the rather bad chances of Jack Lascar would be evened a little.

Some one yelled: "Hurry it up! Hurry it up! The sheriff's comin', hell bent!"

Then out of the distance Montana could hear the small beating of hoofs.

Jack Lascar had turned aside. He was not fool enough to offer the full breadth of his body to an enemy. He forgot that his turn brought the buckle of the hat-belt into full view.

They were twenty paces apart. "How does this suit you, Jack?" asked Montana.

Lascar's whole body jerked with the violence of his word. He barked his curses like a dog. Any distance suited him. Ten paces would be better.

The Kid smiled and walked straight on.

Montana, meets an enemy who also is a friend, Monday.

HAINES WANTS MOTOR BUSES TO CARRY MAIL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Legislation providing for a wider use of motor vehicles in the transportation of the mails was introduced in the house by Representative Harry L. Haines, of Red Lion.

In the measure, which has been referred to the house committee on postoffices and post roads, the interstate commerce commission is empowered to fix schedules and rates applicable to the proposed service.

According to Mr. Haines, the bill is not designed to take from the railroads any of the mail business now handled by them, but is intended primarily for a more expedient distribution in sections where the depression has forced railroad lines and branches out of business.

In three areas the postoffice department could require that buses traveling over the desired routes carry the mail in the same manner that it now demands that the railroads carry it.

TRANSPORTATION STRIKE IN MEXICO IS AVERTED

Mexico, D. F., Jan. 19 (AP).—A threatened transportation tie-up in Mexico resulting from strikes in several oil companies apparently was averted Friday as the government announced it would import and distribute petroleum products essential to industry.

Earlier striking employees of the Agula (Royal Dutch Shell subsidiary) Oil company asked President Lazaro Cardenas to confiscate the extensive properties of the British-owned corporation and turn them over to the workers.

To this petition, based on the company's alleged refusal to accept collective bargaining, the government late Friday had returned no reply.

Coach George Forney's Gettysburg high school passers stepped out into first place in the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league race Friday night by walloping Carlisle high at Carlisle, 28-9.

The victory was the third straight league triumph for the Maroons in as many starts and marked their fourth straight after losing the opening game of the season by a one-point margin.

The Maroons gave a great exhibition in winning. Playing a fine defensive game, the Forney-men yielded but two field goals during the entire game while ramming thirteen through the meshes for themselves.

Fischer carried off the scoring honors by looping a total of ten points, bagging four double-deckers and a pair of fouls. Phil Everhart caged four goals for eight points.

Gain Big Lead

After a hard fought first period which found the locals leading 6-4, Gettysburg stepped out and rolled up nine points in the second period while holding the opponents to a single charity toss. At half time Gettysburg led, 15-5.

Continuing their snappy work in the third period, Coach Forney's charges hiked their lead to 22-6. The Green and White hoopers again being blanked from the floor, a lone foul toss being their only score.

The final period saw Carlisle gain its second field goal when Bowser located the hoop from the floor. Gettysburg easily maintained its big lead and coasted in to victory.

The fast stepping undefeated Maroon and White scrubs chalked up their sixth straight victory by nosing out the Carlisle reserves in a snappy preliminary game, 24-21.

Tuesday evening the Maroons will play the Scotland industrial school quintet on the local floor. A preliminary game will be played at 7 o'clock.

Charleston, W. Va. (AP).—Patrons of the state's barber shops can have their hair brushed in the good old way once more. A ruling in the code for barbers which for months banned brushes due to possible uncleanness has been modified to the "open back" type to be put into service again.

Boys Capture Quincy Game 24-12 While Girls Win 28-2 Friday Night.

Coach Bernard Thrush's Biglerville high school courtmen capped their fourth victory in six starts Friday evening by defeating the Quincy passers at Biglerville, 24-12.

With Martin in the role as the offensive ace, the upper courtians rolled up a 15-8 lead in the first half and maintained a lead which was never threatened.

The Biglerville hoopers outplayed their opponents throughout the second half during which time frequent substitutions were made.

The undefeated Biglerville girls won their sixth straight in easy fashion by walloping the Quincy sextet, 28-2.

A single goal by Wagaman in the first half was the only score for the invaders. Fohl and Weikert contributed 21 points to the Biglerville scoring.

Next Friday evening the Biglerville teams will entertain the Arendtsville vocational school cagers in the first of their annual series.

COLLEGE FROSH DEFEATED 28-23

York collegiate institute came from behind a 15-7 half-time score to defeat the Gettysburg freshmen quintet at York Friday night by a score of 28 to 23.

The frosh held the institute cagers scoreless from the field in the first period and then had the trick pulled against themselves in the third period.

York's poor foul tossing was responsible for the close score, as they made only 8 out of 23 free shots good.

WINGS DEFEAT PASSON CAGERS

Locals Down Professional Club at Frederick: Sweetland Five Wins.

The Gettysburg Fleet-Wings won their thirteenth victory in sixteen starts Friday evening by defeating the highly touted Philadelphia Passons, at Frederick, Maryland, in easy style, 35-28.

Off to a flying start by a pair of double-deckers by Zahn, the Wings took the lead in the opening minute of play and were never headed.

Heller and Zahn kept the locals out in front in the first half by their goal tossing and the fine passing and defensive work by the other members of the squad. At half time the Wings led, 20-12.

Late in the contest when the locals had the game sewed up, the Passons bagged some long shots to bring the score to close quarters, but the Wings' lead was too great.

Holds Scoring Ace

Chanowski did a great job of stopping Chesin, high scoring Passon forward, by blanking him without a field goal. Chesin's only tally being a pair of fouls.

The Wings put up one of their best exhibitions and completely outclassed their opponents. Heller played a fine offensive game, his

After these things were ended, Paul purposed in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.

So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus; but he himself stayed in Asia for a season.

And the same time there arose
no small stir about that way.

For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen;

Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we see and hear,

Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods, which are made with hands;

So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought;
but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all
Asia and the world worshippeth.

And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.—Acts 19:21-28.

Slaybaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Slaybaugh, Butler township, and John Wirt, son of Mrs.
Alma Wirt, Straban township. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Harold Little, pastor of the New Chester Lutheran charge.

Wins X Word Prize.—Donald
Bream, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C.
Bream, East Middle street, was notified that he was the winner of one of the $1 prizes offered by the Philadelphia Inquirer in the crossword puzzle contest now being conducted by that newspaper. He is said to be the first person in Gettysburg or Adams county to share in the awards.

PODERJAY ENDS HUNGER

STRIKE ON SHIP AT SEA
Aboard S. S. President Polk at Sea,
Jan. 19.—Brig passenger Ivan Poderjay, "tacked away" from his hunger strike Friday and steered his course toward some savory ship's fare.

The self-asserted former army captain, returning to New York to face questioning concerning the mysterious disappearance of Agnes Tufterson shortly after she married Poderjay in December, 1933, had been foodless for thirty-six hours to protest the indignity of his confinement to the brig.

Officers reported a meal restored the dashing Poderjay, whom the United States extradited from Austria on bigamy charges, to cheerful congeniality.

Today's Talk

—By George Matthew Adams—
ON EARNING

NO matter how favored any of us may be, no matter how much we may have been able to accumulate, no matter how much we may have been done for us, the fact remains that our most intense satisfaction is derived from what we have earned, from what we have sacrificed or suffered to gain.

When we depend upon others for our aid in the "pinches" we give up the opportunity to make of ourselves a dependable, independent human being.

There is only one way to be secure in one's mind, in a financial manner, and that is to earn that security—not to become drugged with an obligation through borrowing from another.

The freest mind is the one which earns its freedom step by step.
There really should be no hurry. The builder handles but one brick, or stone at a time. We should earn as we go, in the same manner. Then when our structure is completed, we have something in which to take pride.

I wonder why it is that so many people take their success second-hand, borrowing it largely from the hard digging of others? Often going into debt to gain it, but never paying it back!

Earn as you go—and you will go far!

One reason why so few appreciate, in a substantial manner, the great gifts of nature is that they have inherited them from the great Creator.
We are all born full of wealth did we but appreciate the fact. All about us are wonders and mysteries, matchless beauties, and formations that challenge our admiration. The greatest achievement of man could not compete with the simplest creation of the commonest flower.

That which we earn we appreciate and understand. In fact we are a vital part of everything that we earn. A certain fine respect accrues to the one who earns his own way, asking favors of no man!

PATTERN 9195

The mother of an active little girl, knows there are two things to ask when selecting her play frocks —first, "is it pretty" and second, but just as important, "will it be pretty after hard wear and many tubbings?" Here's a denature little design that is just right for any of the wearable, washable cotton fabrics.
It's certainly full of small-girl chic as you can see by the perky little round collar, scalloped bodice closing and patch pockets. There isn't one little fussy detail to catch and tear either when sister is romping in it or when you are laundering it.
Well-cut, roomy bloomers are included in the pattern.

Pattern 9195 may be ordered only in sizes, 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires

CHIC AND SLENDERIZING MARIAN MARTIN FROCK

Complete, Diagrammed

PATTERN 9272

Larger women who know "what's what" in the figure flattery will like the long slimming lines of this tal-lored afternoon frock. For it's a woman's frock that's young, becoming and not a bit fussy withal. The slenderizing effect of that front skirt panel—which seems to detract inches from the hip measurements—is carried out above the waistline by the long slim revers that form a nice V. Darts at the shoulders give the bodice comfortable roominess, and vertical tucks at the back of the waistline mold it trimly. The sleeves may be made long or short.

Pattern 9272 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. Size 24 requires 4 yards
39-inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

WINTER SLEEP

The earth is blanketed with snow;
The trees are fast asleep,
Nor all the bitter winds that blow
Can break their slumber deep.
No troubled dreams disturb their rest
'Tis only man who frets
And is by worry so possessed
That little sleep he gets.

All things in nature strength renew
By putting fear away.
They calmly sleep the winter
through,
Nor wakeful try to stay.
'Tis only man who seeks to steal
From the soft lap of sleep
More time to play and plan and deal
Than life would have him keep.

'Tis only man who spends the night
With doubt and fear and dread,
Who thinks so much of wrong and right
He tosses on his bed.
'Tis only man who tries in vain
Beyond his strength to go
And seeks more conquests to attain
Than he was meant to know.

The earth is blanketed with snow
And every sleeping thing
Seems no anxiety to show
About the coming Spring.
But could man shut that world
away
As does a maple tree
And soundly sleep till break of day
Much stronger he might be.

1,000 Flee Into Street
Scantly clad girl performers groped their way from third and fourth story dressing rooms while an audience of about 1,000 fled into South Broad street.

The fire started while a humorist and a "straight man" were putting on a dialogue.

A scenery drop behind them suddenly shot into flame. It crumpled like tissue paper, throwing a blazing sheet across the orchestra pit into the first rows of spectators.

Occupants of the threatened seats scrambled for safety, but not quickly enough. Augustine Ciaiga, 33, of Palmyra, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Newcomb, of Philadelphia, seated in the first row, were burned about the hands and face.

Stage Hands Burned
Stage hands frantically lowered the fire-proof curtain to protect the audience. Stage hands tried to beat out the flames, and Lewis Thompson, 64, and Eri Oberpeck, 53, were burned for their efforts.

WOMAN BAGS PRIZE DEER
Pecos, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Warren Bessent of Pecos brought down the prize deer of the season—a 260-pound, 17-point buck. The deer, known by its peculiar horns, had been stalked by hunting parties for three years.

Becomes Supreme Authority
By virtue of the titles Weyand hands over to him, the quiet, athletic appearing Gamelin, whose tactical orders in the world war are still cited to French student officers as models of clarity and conciseness, becomes virtual commander-in-chief of the French armies.

He will retain his post as chief of staff, receiving in addition the titles vice president of the superior war council and inspector general of the army.

Over him, nominally, is the president of the superior war council, who is the minister of war, but the fact the occupant of that office is determined by the varying winds of French politics makes the inspector general and vice president of the council, in effect, France's supreme military authority.

PENSION BILL EXPLAINED FOR $100 A MONTH CLERK

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—A store clerk who goes to work at the age of twenty in January, 1937, and earns $100 a month until he is sixty-five would get a monthly pension of $40 from then until he died under the plan introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner, democrat, of New York. During that time, he would pay 50 cents a month for the first five years, a dollar a month for the next five, $1.50 a month for the next five, $2 a month for the next five, $2.50 a month for the next five years. His employer would have made similar payments for him. The two would have paid a total of $2,150. The average life of a man is less than one year beyond 65.

Payment of Baltimore Civil War Claim Is Pending in Congress

Washington, Jan. 19.—Legislation is now pending in both houses of congress to authorize the payment of the 50-year-old Baltimore Civil War claim. Representative Kennedy reintroduced a bill in the house, and a week ago Senator Robinson, Arkansas, majority leader, introduced a similar measure for Senator Tydings.

Mr. Kennedy, who has just been made chairman of the claims committee of the house, obtained a favorable report on the bill from the war claims committee at the last session, and also obtained approval of the house. The measure would have been finally enacted but for the objection of Representative Buchanan (Dem., Texas), who held it up in conference.

It was said yesterday that Mr. Kennedy will probably be able to secure enactment of the measure by the house, because of his position as chairman of the committee on claims.

The favorable report made on it by the house committee at the last session was the first such action by any committee since congress authorized the payment of the principal. The pending bill would authorize the government to pay the city $171,034 for interest on the claim.

The drawing resulted in Senators Ashurst of Arizona and Catron of New Mexico receiving six-year terms, Senator Smith of Arizona a four-year term, and Senator Fall of New Mexico a two-year term.

No states have been admitted since that time.

Inasmuch as the senate provided for the drawing on each occasion when one was required by adopting a separate resolution, it was possible to have the new senators draw for six, four, or two-year terms as needed to preserve the balance of the senate.

FOUR BAD MEN AND WOMAN ARE NABBED FRIDAY

Members of "Tri-State Gang" Arrested in New York by U. S. Agents.

ROBERT MAIS IS AMONG BANDITS

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The "tri-state gang" whose trail is red with robbery and blood, was smashed by the department of justice's crack operatives Friday.

Five persons, two of them already under sentence of death, were arrested as U. S. agents struck three times in swift succession.

One of the prisoners, a woman, was the unknown "finger" that pointed out the other four.

The prisoners are: Robert Mais, 29; Walter Legenza, 41; Martin Farrell, 28; Edwin Gale, 23; Mary McKeever.

Fray Fay, chief of the department of justice operatives in this district, directed Friday's coup.

Mais and Legenza, two of the country's most desperate criminals, were caught separately, each in bed. Both are under sentence of death in Virginia.

The McKeever woman unwittingly led Fay and his men first to Farrell and Gale, next to Legenza and finally—at half past three Friday morning, as he slept—to the notorious Mais.

The "tri-state gang" was picked up without a struggle excepting, as Fay said, "the usual scuffling."

"We picked them off one by one," Fay said "so that other members of the gang did not know we were even on the trail until we grabbed them."

The "break" in the hunt for Mais and his crew of cutthroats (as federal men described them) came when Fay learned that the McKeever woman, who has been hunted as accessory in the escape of Mais and Legenza from the Richmond jail September 29, was in town.

Shadows trailed her; and one by one she led the agents first to Farrell and Gale at a mid-town hotel, then to Legenza—lying on a hospital cot with his legs broken—and finally to Mais asleep in an apartment with a pistol by his side and "a very wicked looking knife" within arm's reach.

Mais and Legenza shot their way out of a prison in Richmond, killing one prison guard and seriously wounding two others. They were under sentence of death for the slaying of a custodian of a U. S. mail truck.

HANDWRITING EXPERT TESTIFIES

Elbridge Stein (above), handwriting expert of the New York city police department, testified in the trial at Flemington, N. J., that he was "forced to conclude quite positively" that ransom notes in the Lindbergh kidnaping were penned by Bruno Richard Hauptmann. Stein is shown with samples of the handwriting. The Prince Is Back
You haven't forgot Prince Mike Romanoff, have you? . . . After several months of obscurity he's back in the headlines . . . appearing on Broadway in a new musical. . . . Tobaccoists insist the sales of pipe tobacco have leaped 30 per cent since cold weather. . . .

Another of society's loveliest young matrons has invaded Broadway. . . . This time an old stable has been turned into a smart rendezvous that will open at cocktail time, continue through dinner, then operate as a night club until dawn. . . . When the new Waldorf bar was previewed the place was overrun with women. Probably because never again will women be permitted to enter there.

That thinish, rather worried and pale young man hurrying along Broadway is Noel Crawford, here to direct his new play. . . . After its premiere, with Osgood Perkins and the Lunts, he'll be off to China. . . . The title of the play is "Point Valaine" and its premiere will raise the count of plays to four for Empire writers. . . . Coward's "Conversation Piece" is current, and Sean O'Casey, the Dublin bard, already has two pieces running.

"Goodbye Again"
Joe Cook is reopening his summer home on Lake Hopatcong for "just one more fling." . . . It's been only a couple of weeks since he "closed" it for the year, but now that he has been signed to a contract by a major film company, he says it would be impossible for him to go away without a farewell party. A pleasant surprise of the season is the dual triumph being enjoyed by Lucienne Boyer, whose income from the stage is being almost equalled by the sales of phonograph records. . . . She records all our hit tunes in French. . . .

Many artists insist on buying only those paints that come from Belgium. . . . They say they hold truer and are undimmed by age. . . . Which blasts another theory; I thought maybe that might be why so many paintings have that blurred, confused appearance. . . .

Woman Says Hauptmann
Paid All Fisch's Bills on Hunt

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—Although the Bruno Richard Hauptmann defense contends that the accused Bronx carpenter was penniless save for money left in his possession by Isidor Fisch, who died in Germany, as late as the autumn of 1933, Hauptmann paid all the bills when the two went on a hunting trip.

Such at least is the tale of Mrs. O. D. Crawford, of Claryville, New York, at whose home they stayed, with another man named "Herman," during the hunting trip.

Mrs. Crawford told about it Thursday while visiting her daughter, Dr. Florence Cargill, an osteopath, at 329 East Montgomery avenue, Cynwyd.

Her story relayed to Flemington aroused the interest of Attorney General Wilentz, in charge of the prosecution of the carpenter. He telegraphed, asking Mrs. Crawford to go to Flemington to confer with him, for the purpose of rebutting the defense position that Fisch was the man who obtained the Lindbergh ransom money.

Mr. Crawford said that the three men on arriving at her home told of being arrested en route because they stopped their automobile and fired shots at a deer. They were accused of shooting on protected property and were fined.

"Hauptmann said he paid $12.50 fines for both himself and Herman," Mrs. Crawford related, "and told me that Fisch had said he had no money, and was let off without a fine."

She said that when the three started hunting Hauptmann appeared in a complete outfit of trousers, jacket and boots that were almost new, while Fisch not only had no hunting clothing, but had very few shells.

She said that when the men left Hauptmann paid the bill of $15 for all three men.

"I have not told this story before," she said, "because I didn't know if it was important. But the more I hear of the defense attempting to prove Fisch had the money and Hauptmann did not, the more I am convinced I should tell it."

Hudson Night Boat
Held Fast in Ice

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—The Hudson river night boat, Poughkeepsie, with 40 members of the crew aboard, was helpless Thursday night in an ice jam a half-mile south of the Hudson river highway bridge. No passengers were aboard.

Although rivermen said she was in no danger, her efforts to smash a channel toward New York left her heading in the opposite direction, a stone's throw from the river bank.

The Poughkeepsie was caught fast shortly late Wednesday night. She left her dock about 11 o'clock. At first the drawbridge operator was reluctant to open the bridge, fearing the Poughkeepsie would be wedged in and stop all highway traffic across the river. The Poughkeepsie smashed through ice under the bridge, however. A few minutes later the steel-sheathed bow of the big freight steamer rode up on an ice cake and she was stuck fast.

JAIL BREAKER AT YORK IS ARRESTED IN TEXAS

York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Roy B. Smith, 24-year-old negro, who danced his way out of the York county jail July 16 last, after attempting a criminal assault on Mrs. G. Frank Lindenmuth, has been arrested at San Antonio, Texas. Word of the fugitive's capture was sent Friday to Warden Lindenmuth by Frank P. Tucker, chief parole officer, Philadelphia, who says he is sending two police to Texas to take the prisoner to the Eastern penitentiary.

The captured fugitive was serving from three to six years in the Eastern penitentiary when he was brought to the York jail. On the day of his escape he had been working in the warden's quarters. He was frightened when a son of the warden approached and, to cast aside suspicion, he danced and sang as he went through the door of the jail to freedom.

STATE TO GET
RELIEF MONEYFederal Government Agrees
To Advance Six Millions;
Earle at Confab.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Informed by Governor Earle that Pennsylvania's state treasury was penniless, Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins Thursday night agreed to advance up to six million dollars to carry forward the unemployment relief work in the commonwealth until February 1.

In the interim—there having been reached "a meeting of minds" at two conferences held here Thursday—further agreement as to the future unemployment relief fund program is to be attained.

Then Governor Earle will ask the Pennsylvania legislature to enact the necessary laws and make the necessary appropriations for the next biennium.

Confers With Hopkins Twice
Temporarily at least Pennsylvania's new governor—who hinted at inheriting an unpleasant relief administration situation—has been given a respite through federal cooperation.

He held two conferences on the subject with Hopkins during the afternoon and evening. In these he was accompanied by Senator Joseph F. Guffey, Robert L. Johnson, the new state relief administrator, and Harry L. Kalodner, his secretary.

Earle, with Hopkins and Guffey standing by, summed up the results after the second conference.

"The conclusions can be stated in a few words," he said. "There has been a substantial meeting of minds between Mr. Hopkins and myself to the effect that the federal government, as represented by Mr. Hopkins, will take cognizance of the desperate predicament of relief in Pennsylvania as we take office, and will advance the moneys necessary to carry the program for this month through until February first. This will be upwards of $6,000,000."

"By the first of February we believe we will have arrived at a permanent arrangement of some sort whereby the new work relief pro-

ALLOWANCE OF $48,000

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Surrogate James A. Foley Friday renewed the $48,000 annual allowance of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt for the maintenance of her home and herself, the amount to be paid out of the estate of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria.

The order, substantially the same as the surrogate's order of a year ago, directs that the child's mother receive $9,000 for personal expenses, that $3,000 be paid as an allowance to the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan; $1,500 be allowed for medical expenses, and the balance of $34,500 be paid by the guardians of the child's estate for the maintenance of her mother's home.

English Bowling

London (AP).—George Wright and T. C. Hills, champion bowling greeners of England, have announced they will compete in the American winter championships starting at St. Petersburg, Florida, on February 14.

Outdoor bowling is one of the favorite sports of England and Scotland during the summer months. More than 20 competitors attended the championships here, won by Wright and Hills.

Edenton and Hillsboro, capitals of North Carolina in colonial days, remain thriving cities.

MR. MICAWBER
and the beautiful budget

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen nineteen six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds, aught and six, result misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—and in short you are for ever floored. As I am!"

Take it from Mr. Micawber, or from any one of thousands who know it for the truth, there's no friend like cash! And there's no way to be so certain of cash as to spend within your budget.

Begin today! Say to yourself—so much will go for food, so much for rent, so much for fuel, so much for charity. Stick within your budget and you'll find it bountiful enough to leave you something over!

One of the best ways to budget as you go is to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Daily, as in a parade, the good values of the good stores march before you. Roast beef or chops for Sunday dinners, a special style in men's shirts, new drapes for the living-room . . . the advertisements will help you choose them all, and often at a saving!

Man About
Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—One of the genuinely gratifying things about New York is its impromptu phraseology. . . . On a recent evening I overheard this remark, uttered by a total stranger, and rather sadly, I thought: "There ought to be a Ghetto for the Irish, where blood could run freely and where kindness would go unnoticed. There is so much of it."

Jean Fardullis, the Greek baritone, was once a prizefighter. . . . A rumor now floating through the rum-shops is that most of the champagne used in champagne cocktails is really apple-cider. . . . Leslie Howard's return to Broadway will be his first appearance on a New York stage in nearly five years.

If this interests you, the New York critics are unable to coincide in their opinions of Tallulah Bankhead, in her new play. One of them says she is "Art incarnate." . . . To another she is a "nimble kitten playing with a ball of yarn." . . . Still another hazards that she is doing rather well the role of a sybari-
